Leon Corbett is the project finance manager for the Florida Department of Transportation and is based in the Department's central office in Tallahassee. He leads a team responsible for the financial development of public-private partnerships (P3s) and other major project advancements. Since joining the Department in 2008, Leon has helped advance the I-595 Corridor Improvements, Port of Miami Tunnel and I-4 Ultimate availability payment P3s as well as a number of design-build-finance P3s. His responsibilities also include financial planning for Department-owned, non-Turnpike toll facilities and the State Infrastructure Bank.

Leon's prior experience includes more than 10 years in corporate and non-profit marketing. Before joining the Department, he served as director of advertising and direct marketing for VISIT FLORIDA, a public-private partnership that serves as the state's official tourism marketing corporation. He earned an MBA from Florida State University and a BA from Wake Forest University.
